About the Instructor:

His lists of accomplishments in the photographic industry are lengthy. He has won numerous awards including two prestigious National Newspaper Awards. He has traveled around the world on photographic assignment covering events such as the Gulf War, civil strife in Latin and South America and Afghanistan. His coverage of sporting events includes everything from Stanley Cup hockey, to the World Series to Olympic Games and World Cup Soccer. He considers himself privileged to have traveled with and photographed extensively the late Pope John Paul II.

Despite his experience at major world events Fred finds the hidden bays and marshes of the Kawarthas, a photographic challenge. While he still spends time in the city of Toronto as photographer for The Toronto Blue Jays and covering national stories for Reuters News Service, he is at home here. He can often be found at dawn on Pigeon Lake.

His photography workshops were born out of a teaching position he holds at Seneca College on the campus of York University. His photography in his own words is a combination of many different skills. Today's technology combined with old school knowledge of light, aperture and shutter-speed.

Course Content:

Re-enforcement and study of the basic fundamentals light, aperture and shutter speed. How these fundamentals are still the back bone of good photography in this modern digital age. Understanding the new age of digital imaging and how to apply this advancing technology.
